

Self-reflection

YOUR JOURNAL TOWARDS RECONCILIATION

1. If the land was never really the Government of Canada's to claim, what does Canada as a nation actually mean?

2. In the work you do, do you have an obligation to consult with Indigenous peoples? If not, how could it be beneficial to consult with Indigenous communities?

3. What do you think about Indian hospitals and sanitariums? How do these government decisions make you feel?

4. Why do you think Dr. Bryce was removed from his position? After this report, how could the Government of Canada continue running Indian Residential Schools for another 69 years?

Self-reflection

YOUR JOURNAL TOWARDS RECONCILIATION

5. How do you think these traumatic experiences (Indian hospitals and sanitariums, Indian Residential Schools, Sixties Scoop, Child welfare system, Violence against Indigenous women and girls) impact individuals, families and communities?

6. What do these court cases (Delgamuukw, Sparrow, Marshall and Tsilhqot'in) mean for the Government of Canada? How can public service employees better respect the rights of Indigenous peoples and the obligations of the Government of Canada?

7. How can you use the 10 Principles respecting the Government of Canada's relationship with Indigenous peoples in your role as a public service employee?
